

5 Tips on Finding a Good Electrician

Make sure they are registered members of ECSSA or RECI and are fully qualified, insured and experienced.

Word of Mouth – check their previous testimonials; if past clients are happy, you are likely to have a positive experience and know you can trust them.

Look at a list of the services they offer / specialise in – this can indicate if they can offer the service you require.

Find out what area they operate in to see if they cover your location.

Check do they offer free estimates – this way you can price around and see who is the best match for your needs.

Do they have a website? More established companies will have a website, showing they take their business seriously and aren't just doing it as a side-job.

And finally, if you are happy with the electrician you get, don't forget to tell your friends and family – it's good to support good electricians and see Irish business grow.
